Here in English translation

Well-known intellectual, professor and independent social researcher, the Spanish writer Jesús García Blanca knows in depth the mechanisms and institutions that today allow those who manage in the shadows the power of the world to control for decades all the health systems of the planet. In fact, he is the one who has most extensively studied the Covid-19 farce, a non-existent "pandemic disease" caused by an equally non-existent virus baptised as SARS-CoV-2, something he has comprehensively documented in our journal in the last three years, where he has published nearly one hundred and fifty articles in eleven years. Now that the Covid-19 farce has officially come to an end, he did not want to miss the opportunity to summarise extensively how it was all orchestrated, who was behind such a gigantic set-up, what their objectives were and how and why they achieved them. And he has done so in a brief but dense and well-sourced book entitled La rebelión de los idiotas ('The Rebellion of the Idiots').

La rebelión de los idiotas is the latest work of investigation (or as he calls it, "battle") by the 63-year-old writer Jesús García Blanca from Cadiz. His previous works are well known, they have given him the reputation he now enjoys and among them are the essays El rapto de Higea (Ed. Virus, 2010), La Sanidad contra la Salud: una mirada global para la autogestión (Ediciones i, 2015), Vacunas: una reflexión crítica (Ediciones i, 2016) -this one in collaboration with Dr. Enrique Costa Vercher-, Wilhelm Reich, inspirador de rebeldía (Ed. Cauac/Crimentales, 2017) and Fake News: la Manipolazione delle notizie (Grupo Macro, 2019). He is also the author of four novels: Camera Obscura (Travels in Fiction) (Ed. Chiado, 2011), The Black Box (Self-Publishing/Amazon, 2019), Redemption (Self-Publishing/Amazon, 2019), The 1977 Trilogy (Self-Publishing/Amazon, 2023), The Second River. The Apollonius Manuscript (Amazon Self-Publishing, 2022), extensively two-volume novel dedicated to Apollonius of Rhodes, head of the Library of Alexandria and author of The Argonautics. It should be added that The Apollonius Manuscript is only the first instalment of

The Second River, a work that will continue with The Kissos Manuscript and end with The Lost Manuscript.

Jesús García Blanca has also published articles in popular magazines such as Cuerpomente, Mente Sana, Tu Bebé y Energía, Carácter y Sociedad (organ of the Spanish Society of Reichian Therapy) as well as in well-known critical digital media such as CádizRebelde, La Haine, Insurgente, Rebelión, Sumendi and Ekintza Zuzena whilst also writing opinion pieces in his blog: SaludyPoder (<http://saludypoder.blogspot.com>).

It should be noted that the prologue of his new book -La Rebelión de los idiotas- has been written by the former director of Discovery DSALUD for 23 years, José Antonio Campoy, a fact of interest to our regular readers as it indicates that Blanca deserves credit for its content since Campoy has refused to do so in many other cases. Endorsement that he explains in his text: "In just 20 months Jesús García Blanca read dozens of research articles, accessed hundreds of papers published in scientific journals and analysed a multitude of analyses (it is unheard of that in just two years of alleged pandemic so many were published), listened on radio or viewed on videos and television channels numerous documentaries and interviews and, more difficult and significant, he personally interviewed in Spain and other countries many doctors, nurses, virologists, virologists, epidemiologists, infectologists, biologists, chemists, laboratory technicians, geneticists and even representatives of international organisations and public health agencies as well as foreign lawyers and journalists specialised in health. An incredible work unknown to the vast majority of society".

Before transcribing the interview our last remarks are that Jesús García Blanca was one of the architects of the tedious work of putting scientific fundamentalists in their place, in his own words, "those people who attribute to science the status of a religion possessing the absolute truth outside of which there is no salvation. For them science is the only yardstick, the only way to knowledge. They consider themselves soldiers in a holy war; their vocabulary, their discourse and even their vision of reality are paranoid and impregnated with intolerance, fanaticism, scientific ethnocentrism and underlying fascism. And it is not just that they are a danger to the critics - which they are too- but to the very science they claim to defend because they trample on its fundamental principles - debate, presentation of argument and hypothesis. Moreover, they resort to the most dastardly tactics, publicly denouncing and outraging honest people and even exploiting deaths that they attribute to what they call 'pseudosciences', which are simply natural, alternative or traditional therapies that they fight against in the service of the 'pharmafia'".

We invite the reader to read the magnificent article entitled "Scientific fundamentalists against critical thinking" published in issue 135 of our magazine, a work in which, among many other issues, there are tough but well-founded assertions by García Blanca such as the following:

"Since Auguste Comte published his positivist Catechism in 1852, Science has been consolidated as 'the religion of modernity'. Its doctrines are the scientific publications and its heretics are the researchers and scientists who maintain critical positions with the theories established as dogmas. And obviously the Scientific Religion also has its extremist fanatics, a sect of radical fundamentalists who believe themselves to be in possession of the absolute truth and claim to represent the scientific community. Fanatics who in their publications and web pages use personal disqualification, insult, slander and libel as "argumentation". And I would add: "Critical thinking implies an open mind and enough intellectual humility to examine all kinds of different ideas and points of view. Dogmatism -which we could consider a form of paranoia- is characterised on the contrary by a closed, egocentric mind, fixed to what it considers 'the truth' and that, therefore, does not admit other points of view".

And after this brief introduction, we will now present the interview.

THE REBELLION OF THE IDIOTS

- In your latest book, Rebellion of the Idiots, you explain that you did not want to merely summarise the false pandemic that curtailed our freedom, limited our fundamental rights and transformed us into mere numbers, but rather provide an exhaustive account of how, when, why and why Covid-19 was fabricated. The readers of Discovery DSALUD were able to know the truth from the very beginning thanks to the numerous texts published by our magazine between February 2020 and January 2022 and, therefore, they also know how much you contributed with your research and articles and as a true professional, you almost always refrained from expressing personal opinion. Fortunately, you have now decided to do so. Tell us, why should readers who read everything you published at the time in the magazine read this book? And, above all, are we in your view now in a position, four years later, to know everything that lies behind this farce?

- It will require time and distance to give an adequate account of what the false pandemic was, who set it up and in what context and, of course, what were its consequences at all levels. With this short book I have not intended to make a systematic and detailed analysis of everything that happened, but to explain the research I carried out during two years -between January 2020 and January 2022- and to place it in the context of the global research I have been doing for 29 years on the instruments of power in the fields of health, medicine, education and ecology.

The book will therefore be useful both for those who did not read the articles I published in Discovery DSALUD and for those who did. The former will thus have a clear and rigorous idea of what happened and what was systematically hidden from the public and the latter will be able to go a little beyond the Covid Montage, to know the context in which to place it and, perhaps, to advance towards the knowledge of the truth and the fight against such terrible aggressions against humanity. That is why I have divided the book into three different parts: in the first part I explain my two-year investigation, taking as a starting point the questioning of the very existence of the alleged SARS-CoV-2, I address the complete ineffectiveness of the tests officially used to diagnose the alleged "disease" and I give an account of the multiple existing explanations for the real cause or causes of the health problems that were freely blamed on the non-existent Covid-19 sufferers. Currently, there are already numerous independent, honest and rigorous researchers who have explained it extensively and conscientiously. I also make an intense critical analysis of the illegal measures that were ordered all over the planet and denounce that the misnamed "COVID vaccines" that soon began to be developed and administered for billions were not only ineffective and unnecessary, but dangerous. Finally, I end the first part by answering the key question: who has been behind this whole farce and why.

- It seems a lot of information for a mere introduction. And what do you talk about in the second part?

- In it I summarise four keys that allow us to understand how the mechanisms of power work in the fields that I have been researching for almost thirty years, especially in the areas of health and education. The first and most important of these four keys has to do with the "creation" of obedient citizens, those whom I call idiots according to the Greek etymology of the word. Recall that the term was applied to those citizens who did not attend the Greek assemblies of free men where community decisions were made and, therefore, let others decide for them.

The second key is socio-political and I give a brief description of the institutions and organisations that make up what I call the Global Health Apparatus and the Hegemonic Medical Model through which it exercises its power in the fields of health and medicine.

The third key is the set of false theories converted today into dogmas that serve as a basis for this Hegemonic Medical Model and are headed by the Microbial Theory, with all that it implies: a false notion of immunity, the belief in disease-causing pathogenic microbes, the development of supposed vaccines, the idea that health problems can be solved through genetic manipulation... And, finally, I speak of what I have decided to call iatrocide, a term by which I refer to the massive iatrogenic genocide that has been perpetrated for at least a century by the international medical-pharmaceutical industrial network.

I end this second part with the decisive role played in this plot by the mass media and the large companies and computer platforms, since it has been through all of these that the ruling classes have controlled - and continue to control - all the world's information, imposing official truths while censoring dissident or critical experts, scientists and journalists. And from there, finally, I move on to the third part, which is where I present an optimistic vision.

- Are you optimistic in view of what has happened and is happening? What specifically do you propose in this third part?

- I dedicate the first chapter of the third part to explain that we are on the threshold of a radical transformation of biology. It is evident that a revolution of the discipline based on Microecology, that is, on the ecology of our internal environment, will soon take place. When its foundations are understood and accepted, we will be faced with a new way of understanding health and disease, with another way of practicing medicine and, therefore, with another way of conceiving health systems which, at present, far from protecting people's health, do precisely the opposite: they attack them in many ways.

And in the last chapter I enter fully into my proposal: the rebellion of the idiots. And I do so hand in hand with a handful of intellectuals who have influenced me since I turned 17 and who have inspired many of my ideas, criticisms, challenges and provocations. It is clear to me that the rebellion of the idiots is increasingly necessary and urgent.

- The title of your book seems a bit aggressive and it is possible that people who do not read it may be shocked by its forcefulness because they do not understand its meaning because they do not know the etymological origin of the word "idiot". Doesn't it worry you?

- My books have always been provocative. How else can you get people to react? And although it may seem naïve, I aspire to get some reaction beyond that small circle of critics. In fact, the ultimate aim of my new book is to provoke a reaction in those who until now have obeyed orders from "above" and in those who, being critical in other fields, have never understood that health and health care are the most suitable areas in which to exercise power more easily.

I am aware that ideas that go against the grain always run the risk of being misunderstood because most people do not have the basic concepts to understand what is radically new or different, but even so, I have tried to explain -on the back cover of the book- my use of the term "idiot". In fact, it is a term I have been using for years in my articles and public appearances and I hope that even readers who do not know me, who have never read or listened to me, will understand what I mean by using it.

MY LAST BATTLE BOOK

- You claim to have written this book because you still harbour the hope that the masses of society will wake up, open their eyes and finally realise that there really is a shadow power that governs the entire planet, characters that you graphically define as "the masters of the world". Are you really so optimistic considering what you have seen so far?

-I recognise that it may seem contradictory because I have been confronting the system all my life and I have not seen society wake up, but this is going to be my last "BATTLE BOOK" and, to tell the truth, I wanted to "say goodbye" leaving windows open to hope. My confidence in the future is defined by one word: self-regulation. It is the proposal made by my admired Wilhelm Reich in the fifties of the last 20th century in his dream of awakening other human beings to stop being submissive to Power and to recover the possibility of being free and happy. I am convinced that this transformation is possible since, as traditional doctrines state, in the history of humanity, dark periods have always been followed by luminous ones. I therefore understand that our task at this time is to sow so that a new harvest may take place as soon as possible, so that a new cycle of light and hope may begin.

- Do you really think that the billions of citizens who assume as indisputable truths everything they are told by the authorities in the field of health can come to question the information received and start a personal process of reflection and analysis of the official messages that will make them rebel? You define such a possibility as "the end of the dark period" but do you really think it is possible to wake up this sleepwalking society? Are the "idiots" really ready to come of age and stop obeying, and start thinking for themselves and start being critical?

- Well, I do not aspire to reach so many people. What I set out to do when I wrote at the time about this and other lies -which I have now taken up again in this booklet, trying to organise and synthesise all this- is to fulfil what I ethically consider my part: to transmit what I have learned by the means at my disposal. Are idiots ready to reach the "coming of age"? Well, Kant thought it possible as long as there was a process of enlightenment involved. And I will not be the one who dares to contradict Kant....

- You have a lot of experience in the investigation of supposed pandemics: HIV/AIDS, Influenza A, Zika, Ebola... When did it become clear to you that this was another false pandemic?

- My research work on the AIDS hoax lasted for years and it was what allowed me to systematise over time the way in which the institutions and organisations that exercise health power carry out their set-ups. Keep in mind that health care is not the same as health. At least in Spanish we have this important distinction: when we speak of health we refer to the biochemical, biological and energetic processes of the body and when we speak of health care we refer to the people, institutions, organisations and government administrations that regulate and control the gigantic health system created, from simple health centres, doctors' offices, professional associations, university faculties, laboratories, scientific societies, professional associations and numerous other control mechanisms up to the World Health Organization (WHO). Thus, there is an identifiable pattern for all the set-ups, for so many false epidemics and pandemics constructed as ways to provoke terror and, thanks to it, to achieve obedience and control people.

We are therefore not talking about real medical problems but about non-existent problems created as a strategy to have power over society. They cannot therefore be analysed or refuted from a medical point of view but from a sociopolitical one.

The key element of an epidemic - and of a pandemic - is the theory that there are viruses in our environment that can make us sick and are contagious when in reality such a belief is nothing more than a dogma that was imposed at the time by power interests and not with scientific-medical arguments. There are many scientists who know today that all the so-called "diseases" for which viruses are blamed are actually produced by toxins, especially industrial ones. And that many of them are in pharmaceuticals, vaccines and manipulated foods and beverages that are mass-marketed in stores.

The truth is that it is striking that all declared epidemics and pandemics have always been blamed on microbes -viruses, bacteria and fungi- which have been blamed without reliable evidence; in recent years alleged viral microbes generated with the help of very sophisticated computer programs. Then it is enough to develop tests that "prove" it, even if they are real hoaxes, something completely false. Epidemics and pandemics always spread with the help of false diagnostic tests. This was the case with AIDS, influenza A, Ebola, Zika and, of course, the alleged Chinese coronavirus. When did I become aware that it was all a new hoax? From the very beginning. And it is not my merit, it is that they do not bother to hide their manoeuvres too much because they know they are protected by the impunity conferred by having the Power (with a capital letter).

BIG LIES

- What have been the big lies on which the false pandemic of Covid-19 has been sustained so that it came to be assumed in almost the entire planet and succeeded in plunging a good part of the world's population into the most irrational fear?
- This always works in the same way: relying on a series of generic lies, of falsehoods turned into dogmas that today are uncritically accepted, however false they may be. They are the basis on which all the specific lies of each false pandemic are based. In the case of Covid-19, the farce is based first on the generic dogma of microbial theory, on the lie that deadly viruses exist and that they can develop specific infectious diseases. And what they did was to develop a computer construct, call it SARS-CoV-2 and create the new disease: Covid-19. "Disease" which in this case already has an implicitly invented cause so that it is not questioned. Recall that it was called Corona Virus Disease, i.e. Coronavirus Disease.

The only thing left for them to do was to develop diagnostic tests as false and useless as the virus itself. Today almost nobody moderately informed doubts that the detection tests for the alleged SARS-CoV-2 were - and are - a swindle... despite the official relentless and irrational insistence on their efficacy.

In short, they invented the existence of a deadly virus that caused a supposed disease and endorsed the lie with equally false tests that actually gave positive results to anyone sick from any cause if the PCR test was applied to them at high cycle numbers... which simply invalidates the result - as explained by its creator, Dr. Kary Mullis. The rest is already known to everyone: terror is generated, people are confined or isolated, they are convinced to wear useless masks all day long despite the manufacturers' admittance that they do not protect against any virus, they are made to believe that the pandemic is causing great mortality, they are told that there are effective preventive and curative treatments which makes no sense at all because neither the virus nor the pandemic exist, they are made to believe that vaccines that immunise have been discovered and when it finally proves not to be true they are told that at least they make the disease milder.... And people swallow again and again each new lie.

- Would the LATEST pandemic declaration have been possible without PCR testing?

- Absolutely not. The intentional fraudulent use of PCR is what made the creation of "cases" possible, since a positive PCR test meant that a person was considered "infected" and, therefore, a potential danger that justified isolation measures. It should be borne in mind that epidemics or pandemics are based on two interrelated elements: the number of people affected and the constant threat of infecting or being infected. And both depend on the use of the tests, since it has been demonstrated that they can be manipulated to force positive results.

However, we must not forget the key role of the mass media in the fabrication of the false pandemic and, above all, in the day-to-day maintenance of the orchestrated campaign of terror.

- Do you really believe that by changing the current warmongering model of health and disease, "pandemics" -and therefore vaccines- would be eradicated?

- Only one thing can put an end to false pandemics and the onslaught of vaccines: to inform the population truthfully and rigorously in order to prevent our society from continuing to be composed of docile and obedient uninformed citizens. Providing reliable and verifiable information would prevent them from continuing with their lies and the terror they provoke. A simple critical and unprejudiced look at the Microbial Theory would leave the whole warmongering vision of health and disease without basis. And if we cease to believe that microbes attack us, it would make no sense to exterminate them: we would move from antibiosis to symbiosis, from the paranoid conception - which allows people to be forced to renounce their most elementary rights - to a harmonious vision of cooperation among living beings. It would then be easy to see that vaccines - all vaccines and not only the alleged "COVID vaccines" - are not bad because they have adverse effects but because they lack the slightest biological sense and harm the organism, as has been shown by independent biologists who have thoroughly investigated them instead of uncritically believing everything they have been told.

THE GREAT FARCE OF THE MICROBIAL THEORY

- Do you believe then that microbial theory is the main cause and basis of the prevailing medical model and the current health dictatorship?

- No doubt about it. And it is a vicious circle because it is the Microbial Theory that makes possible the construction of false pandemics and these, in turn, feed the Microbial Theory. In fact, one of the functions of the Covid-19 false pandemic has been to reinforce the Microbial Theory at a time of crisis. Let us recall that very shortly before - around December 2019 - the so-called "anti-vaccine movement" was experiencing an unusual growth that was very worrying for the health authorities. The WHO itself had decided to include the anti-vaccine movement in the list of major global health emergencies that it draws up each year. More and more people doubted them and refused to be vaccinated or to inoculate their children. This was already happening in many countries. In fact, they launched specific strategies to convince people that opposing vaccines was "irrational", "unscientific" and "irresponsible" and endangered people's lives, focusing the campaign especially on children to strike a chord with parents. And this despite the fact that rigorous studies carried out by many different organisations -including some official ones- denounced the increasing number of adverse effects and deaths related to mass vaccinations.

Let us not forget that vaccines are a pillar of "modern" medicine. Questioning them means questioning the entire hegemonic medical model. So the alarm bells went off at the highest levels of power. That happened at the end of 2019 and in December is when the WHO invented an alarm based on alleged cases of "pneumonia" that were initially presented as of unknown etiology.

In short, the "Covid setup" is very complex and has multiple causes as well as multiple objectives. I explain it in the book but for any honest observer of the events that I am describing it was very clear: one of those objectives was to reinforce the dogmas of the infection and, above all, to provoke panic, the terror that prevents serene thinking and paves the way for the majority to accept any kind of measure as, indeed, billions of people, rich and poor, smart and untrained, educated or uneducated, did. The blatant trampling of fundamental rights became something acceptable and normal, and was accepted and defended by practically the entire planet.

- Do you sincerely believe that the static health model based on microbial and reductionist medicine can give way to a dynamic model in which epigenetics will write the future path of the human being?

- I believe that this will be the case if "the rebellion of the idiots" finally takes place, and this hope is what led me to write the book. At the end of the day, the prevailing static model based on dogmas and theories that have never been proven was not imposed through scientific, biological, medical, social or philosophical debate. It was imposed through exercises of power and has been maintained despite the evidence of its destructive nature for the same reasons. It is not therefore a question of achieving a real debate in which two sides put forward their arguments, there is a fair confrontation of models, criteria are established in order to elucidate what is right, etcetera. Not at all. It is about making people aware of the situation, understanding the context in which health issues are situated and replacing blind trust in those in charge with enlightened criticism. And that's not the end of it; that's only the first step, which, in fact, has already been taken. The real key, the real indispensable turning point, is to prevent the "manufacture of idiots" from continuing. Only then will we be able to start from scratch without being subjected to Power. And as I have already said, the key to achieve this has already been given to us by Wilhelm Reich; that is why I put all my efforts into investigating the lies of power and making known Reich's ideas on self-regulation. I have already published a book about it -Wilhelm Reich, inspirer of rebellion- and now I hope that this short booklet will become a manual of healthcare disobedience.

- One last question: in Discovery DSALUD we have published dozens of reports -many of them written by you- in which we have denounced -with names and surnames- the people who direct the destinies of the countries and the population of the Earth, we have made known who manages them in the shadows, who their spokespersons are and the international organisations - public and private- that are in charge of assuming and executing their ideas and, equally, we have told how the economic powers entered the shareholding of the big media in order to control them. And you explain all this again in detail in your new book, in which you make an exhaustive tour of the hidden web of power that really governs the world. Do you really believe that the fact that today's complacent society is aware of all this will awaken it, that this knowledge can make the "idiots" even revolt?

- Knowing about a problem does not necessarily mean that one is capable of solving it, but what is even more evident is that, without knowing about it, nothing will be done to find a solution. Information - however unpleasant, shocking or disturbing it may be - is a prerequisite for awareness and for organising the struggle. I understand that one gives in to pessimism when one looks back at that long struggle that a magazine like Discovery DSALUD waged for a long time almost alone, but what other option is left to us if we are faithful to our ethical condition than to fulfil this duty, so bitter at times but ultimately full of satisfaction, which is to share what we learn in the hope that it will serve to feed that new cycle that I mentioned at the beginning?
